"Come watch me knock out Diego Sanchez," said UFC fighter, Joe Riggs. "If you're in the front row, you might catch a tooth."

Ultimate Fighters Karo "The Heat" Parisyan and Joe "Diesel" Riggs toured Marine Corps Air

Station Miramar the afternoon of Nov. 29 in preparation for their upcoming bouts on base.

The 24-year-old, welterweight fighters conducted a demonstration of the mixed martial arts they use in the Ultimate Fighting Championships, showing a group of Miramar Marines jiu-jitsu, judo, karate, boxing, kickboxing and wrestling techniques, before a tour of base facilities.

During lunch, dozens of Marines gathered around the fighters, eagerly waiting for a demonstration of the mixed martial arts the competitors use during bouts. Marine Corps Martial Arts Program instructors showed off MCMAP techniques,

Avoiding escrow fraud during holidays

With an increase in online shopping, DOC warns against scams

STORY BY LINDSAY HERRICK
CALIFORNIA DEPARTMENT OF CORPORATIONS

This holiday season shoppers will most likely turn to the Internet to avoid crowded shopping malls or to seek better deals online. As you embrace the gift-giving spirit of the season, however, the California Department of Corporations (DOC) offers some words of advice about recognizing and avoiding phony online escrow services for purchases made over the Internet.

Online escrow services have become extremely popular in the Internet auction world, for transactions on sites such as eBay and Autotrader.com. Normally, online escrow services allow a buyer to use a credit card or electronic bank transfer to pay for an item where the seller may not be equipped to accept such transactions. The online escrow service accepts and holds a buyer's payment until the merchandise is received and approved, at which point the payment is forwarded to the seller. In cases of fraud, however, a buyer sends the payment for escrow, but never receives the merchandise. Conversely, a seller may be defrauded by shipping the item sold after being told by the phony escrow service that it has received payment from the buyer.

Last year, the DOC took 49 actions against fraudulent Internet escrow companies. Bogus escrow sites often claim to be licensed. Their Web sites may display a fake escrow license number or misappropriate a number of a legitimately licensed company by providing the license number and link to the DOC's Web site.

Online shoppers are risking throwing their money away by careless payments through the Internet.

There are steps shoppers can take to avoid online escrow fraud. First, never disclose personal information like your social security number, credit card or bank account information until you verify the company is licensed by calling the DOC at 866-275-2677. Also, beware of a buyer or seller who insists on using a particular escrow company, which is often a sign that you are being steered toward a fraudulent Web site. Watch out for sites that do not have an address and phone number clearly listed. If the site lists a phone number, call it and speak with a live person.

For more information, visit DOC's Web site, <http://www.corp.ca.gov>. The DOC is responsible for enforcing the state's laws for financial companies and professionals, educating consumers on fraudulent financial schemes, and streamlining the license application process for financial businesses and professionals.

DoD bars companies

Editor's note: The following information was published in a memo from the office of Michael A. Dominguez, the Principal Deputy Under Secretary of Defense for Personnel and Readiness. He is responsible for providing staff advice for total force management, including quality of life matters.

Effective Nov. 6, I have barred American Amicable Group and its subsidiary companies to include American Amicable Life Insurance Company of Texas, Pioneer American Life Insurance Company and Pioneer Securities Life Insurance Company, from conducting solicitation activities on DoD installations world-wide for a period of five years beginning on July 28, 2006. I request that you take such action as necessary to implement this decision with your respective Military Departments, Defense Agencies and Field Activities without delay.

designed to expose participants to missions the wing expects to execute while deployed.

Some Marines, like Cpl. Josh Rude, have already worked in an environment where you have to work together with many squadrons at the same time and felt that the training is an important step on the road to their Iraq deployment.

“It was a unique experience working with the various squadrons,” said Rude, aviation ordnance technician, Marine

Attack Squadron 214, MAG-13. “I got to see how every shop works, and that’s good to know.”

Rude experienced first-hand what it was like to work with many units while deployed with the 11th Marine Expeditionary Unit last year.

In Yuma, the squadrons will now train in a field environment with the sister squadrons they will deploy with to Iraq, added the sergeant major. This also will help prepare the unit for deployment.

“I am extremely proud of the squadron and their performance thus far,” Vizcarrondo said. “I look forward to deploying with them to Iraq.”

According to Lt. Col. Tim J. McKenzie, training operations officer, 2nd MAW, the overall goal is to increase proficiency levels for conducting operations in a desert environment. Training will also focus on the new section leaders and first-time OIF participants and convoy commanders, as well as increasing knowledge of skills required to conduct convoy operations and mission planning.

They also want to enhance the wing’s ability to conduct integrated combat missions and operations, according to McKenzie.

Many Marines, like Lance Cpl. Eric Wilkinson, airframe mechanic, VMFA (AW)-121, feel the training is critical to their mission readiness.

“This training is invaluable to our future deployment to Iraq,” said Wilkinson, a Brook Park,

Ohio native. “I appreciate all training we do to prepare for Iraq and am looking forward to participating in it.”

Marine Fighter Attack Squadron 121, Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron 161, Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron 466, and Marine Aerial Refueler Squadron 352, Marine Aircraft Group 11, 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing, are all participating in the two-week training evolution.

VMFA(AW)-121 is among four units from Miramar are participating in Desert Talon, a war-time scenario training held at MCAS Yuma, Ariz.

UFC, MCCS brings fight night to Miramar

The UFC is coming to Marine Corps Air Station Miramar Dec. 12th and 13th for the first-ever live UFC event on a military installation.

The fight is open to active-duty Miramar service members only. Command sergeants major will be given about 2,500 tickets to give out to their service members. Ticket-holders are required to wear green utilities or green flight suits and present photo ID and ticket. Sailors must be in the uniform of the day. Personnel will enter through the flight line gate 3, located east of hangar 1 on Boyington Rd. No parking will be available.

For anyone without tickets, the Bob Hope Theater will have a live feed of the fight, complete with UFC fighters and octagon girls. This live viewing of the fight will be open to all eligible patrons with valid military identification. 200 seats will be reserved for active-duty military in uniform. No ticket is required, must be 18 or older and have ID, one guest per ID.

The fight card's main attraction features Joe "Diesel" Riggs against undefeated Deigo "Nightmare" Sanchez. This Welterweight bout should be very exciting with the two fighters performing different styles of fighting in the octagon.

Riggs, 28-8, is a stand up fighter standing 6-foot-1, with a previous professional boxing career and a set of heavy hands who looks for the fight to end with a knockout. Although he is a well-rounded fighter, his strength lies in his hands.

Sanchez, 18-0, is a submission specialist who loves to ground and pound. Other attractions in the Welterweight division are Karo "The Heat" Parisyan against Drew "The Master" Fickett, and Marcus "The Hand Grenade" Davis against Shonie "Mr. International" Carter.

explaining hand-to-hand combat and disarming styles. In return, the fighters modified the MCMAP moves, showing Marines effective and creative ways to utilize new styles in many situations.

"It's definitely different here than I expected," said Parisyan. "It's pretty cool to see the training routines the Marines use everyday."

Following the demonstration, the fighters visited with Aircraft, Rescue and Fire Fighting Marines and took turns using the equipment.

Marines at the Heavy Marine

Helicopter Squadron 462, provided the fighters with squadron signature shirts, beanies and baseball hats.

"It was an honor to have these fine athletes visit our squadron," Lt. Col. John K. Faircloth, Jr. commanding officer of HMMH-462. "It was clear to us they really appreciated our service and sacrifice these Marines have made to their country. The Marines could see it and that made us even more excited about the upcoming event on the 13th."

The show will air on the Spike cable television channel held here at 8 p.m.

HOLIDAY LIBERTY SCHEDULE

The liberty schedule for the upcoming holidays are as follows; Christmas 96' begins noon Dec. 22 , and ends noon Dec. 27. New Year's 96' begins noon Dec. 29, and ends noon Jan. 3.

FELIX CHAPEL DEDICATION

The former small chapel attached to the Airman Memorial Chapel here will be dedicated as the Felix memorial Chapel on Monday, Dec. 11 at 2 p.m.. The 33rd CMC authorized the naming after Religious Program Specialist 1st Class Jose M. Felix, deceased. You are invited to attend the dedication ceremony and follow-on social on the grounds afterwards. For more informatin, please contact the chapel at 858-577-1333.

FREE YOUTH FISHING TRIP

On Dec. 17, the Outdoor Adventure Center, along with the San Diego Rod & Reel club is sponsoring Children of the Troops, a FREE fishing trip for children of active-duty military ages 7-17. The trip will be from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. and is for children only, no adults, and is a great opportunity for your child to be introduced to deep sea fishing. Your child/children's name must be on the list prior to Dec. 17 or they will not be allowed to attend.

For more information, contact the OAC at 858-577-4150 .

MANDATORY H&HS SAFETY STANDOWN

There will be a mandatory safety standown for all H&HS personnel here on Dec. 20 at the Bob Hope Theater from 8-11 a.m.

ARABIC CLASS

Miramar Community College would like to offer Arabic Language/Cultural Classes on base starting February. This course is normally scheduled for 16 weeks but can be shorter if necessary. This is a five credit course and the tuition costs will be covered for all active duty by tuition assistance. Any interested Marines or units need to contact the education center as soon as possible so a schedule can be created.

FREE WEEKLY CLEP & DSST TESTING

Free CLEP and DSST testing are normally scheduled each Wednesday at 6:30 and 9 a.m. and again at 1 p.m. The Education Center recognizes that this schedule may not meet everyone's needs and wants to help you take advantage of this great opportunity. If you or your unit have special needs and are looking to set up a special session, contact Mr. Banks, Miramar education counselor, at 858-577-1801.

Marines support Toys for Tots

SAN JOSE, Calif. – In support of the Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots effort, the 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing Band participated in the 25th Annual San Jose Holiday Parade Dec. 3.

The band's performance of "Frosty the Snowman" and "Let it Snow, Let it Snow, Let it Snow" and traditional marches by John Phillip Sousa not only helped raise awareness for the annual charity toy drive, but also helped the Toys for Tots float earn first place honors in the public agency float competition.

"I was really pumped to see the Marines here," said spectator Lance Marshall as he held his cell phone in the air, allowing his brother, – a former Marine – to hear the band's performance. The crowd cheered throughout the streets for the Marine musicians.

The band also performed at Christmas in the Park at Plaza de Cesar Chavez that night, adding musical ambiance to the field of twinkling Christmas tree donations and holiday displays.

At the evening concert, the band added musical selections from the Nutcracker Ballet and a special version of "'Twas the Night Before Christmas" with narration by Staff Sgt. Benjamin Becker, the band drum major.

Master Gunnery Sgt. Luis O. Arce, band master, pulled Jonathan D. Donkers from the crowd and allowed the 10-year-old volunteer to lead the band. The aspiring musician did surprisingly well and made the band proud of his performance.

Cpl. Hector A. Mendoza, trumpet player, 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing band, warms up before the band marches. The band performed as part of the Marine Reserve Toys for Tots float, winning the Public Agency Award in the float competition.

“I wasn’t nervous at all,” said Donkers about his performance adding that he had participated in a band summer camp this year.

The band trip was sponsored by the city of San Jose, Calif.

“For me it’s one of the ways to marry a great band and event and benefit the local community,” said Ed Bautista, marketing and events manager for the city. “The Marine Corps band represents the finest in the military. They’re professional and precise, whether in the concert or the band room, people always take notice. They do good things by not only protecting our nation but by doing great things for the community.

For the band, the event was not just a chance to spread some holiday cheer to others, it was an opportunity to share in the joy and make a good impression on the local community.

“I love traveling to perform for public events because, for most people we are the only Marines they will ever get to see in person,” said Cpl. Justin A. Billingsley, 3rd MAW Band percussionist. “When we are performing our music we look so professional it leaves the audience standing and applauding. I’d like to think they go home at night and sleep a little sounder because they know they have a group of professionals guarding them.”

With joyful sounds of the holiday season the Marine musicians were not only grateful for the opportunity to help the Toys for Tots effort, they were glad to give the San Jose community a first-hand glance at Marine Corps precision.

The aircraft, the 2,300th C-130 produced by Lockheed Martin was flown back to Marine Corps Air Station Miramar where it will become part of Marine Tactical Aerial Refueler Transport Squadron 352. In production since 1954, the C-130 has been in continuous production longer than any other military aircraft. Helland is the 3rd MAW commanding general. Photo courtesy Lockheed Martin

Helping Hands

Miramar corporal helps Marine Band San Diego

SAN DIEGO – With the holidays in full swing everyone is in the spirit of giving, especially one corporal from the 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing band. Cpl. Marco Gonzalez, guitar player, volunteered to fill in for a fellow band member at Marine Band San Diego for their tree lighting concert Dec. 2nd. "In the Marine Corps, each band is only allotted one guitar player," said Staff Sgt. Mark Reherd, public affairs chief, Marine Band San Diego. "He volunteered his spare time and jumped right into rehearsals." At the concert Gonzalez played the guitar for two pieces of holiday music. "I believe anyone would have done the same for me," said Gonzalez. "I was more than happy to volunteer and help out with the concert." Photo by Lance Cpl. Vanessa D. Barnes

OUR ADVERTISING POLICY

We try to have adequate stock of advertised items. When out-of-stocks occur, we offer a substitute item of comparable value.
This excludes limited offers and special-purchase items not regularly available at your MCX. To maximize stock available to customers, we may limit quantities. Advertised prices and discounts do not apply to items on layaway. We are not responsible for printer's or typographical errors. Special catalog pricing effective 14 December, 2006. No additional discounts on advertised items.
